IAN ROSENBLUM

THE EDUCATION TRUST-NEW YORK

Ian Rosenblum is Executive Director of The Education Trust–New York, which works to eliminate the gaps in equity, opportunity, and achievement that hold back too many students from reaching their full potential, especially those who are low-income or students of color, in order to enable all students in New York State to achieve at high levels — from early childhood through college.

Prior to founding Ed Trust–NY, Ian served as Deputy Secretary for Education & Economic Opportunity to New York Governor Andrew Cuomo and, earlier, served in Pennsylvania Governor Ed Rendell’s administration.

Ian has developed, negotiated, and implemented policy and programs on key equity issues including high academic standards, early childhood education, strong teachers and principals, school turnaround, and higher education access and success. He also led major components of the enactment of Pennsylvania’s first school funding formula in 17 years, and has experience managing strategic communications in government, advocacy, and political campaigns.

A resident of New York City, Ian holds a master’s degree in government administration from the Fels Institute of Government at the University of Pennsylvania and a bachelor’s degree in urban studies from the University of Pennsylvania.
