

Renewable Energy Conference

June 27 - 28, 2017 • Marist College, Poughkeepsie

E. Scott Medla Ansonia Partners LLC

At Ansonia Partners, Scott is one of two Managing Partners and is jointly responsible for advisory services for all power, utility, renewable, power transmission and energy technology clients. Ansonia Partners which Scott co-founded in January, is the combination of TAG Energy Partners, which was founded by Scott in 2010, and the advisory business led by Craig Orchant, Ansonia's other Managing Partner.

Earlier in his career, Scott served as Managing Director of CIT Energy, where he headed its New York office covering power, utilities, renewables and energy technology companies. He also led CIT Energy's investment banking group. He previously was a Managing Director at Bank of America Securities, at New Harbor and at Fieldstone. In addition, he founded and was Managing Director and Industry Head of Deutsche Bank Securities' power and utility practice for North America.

Scott is currently involved as a financial advisor in almost $10BN of North American projects in the sector including overhead, underground and underwater power transmission, pumped hydro storage, gas fired power production and battery storage. His clients include utilities, contractors and developers.

Scott earned an MBA from the Johnson School at Cornell University and a BA from Union College.
