

Robin Willner

Robin Willner is Director of the NYS P-TECH Leadership Council, representing the Executive Chamber, NY State Education Department, State University of NY, Business Council and IBM International Foundation, scaling the innovative P-TECH 9-14, college and career ready school design. Ms. Willner is coordinating the implementation and continuous improvement of the model in almost 40 partnerships across NY, preparing thousands of students to secure a high school diploma, a 2-year college degree, and the workplace learning necessary for success in 21st century careers. She also advises leadership teams implementing the P-TECH 9-14 model across the nation.

Ms. Willner had a distinguished career as Vice President, Global Community Initiatives for the IBM Corporation. She managed IBM's school partnerships and programs in 80 countries, developing new applications of technology to overcome common barriers to school improvement and increase student achievement. She also oversaw leadership development programs worldwide and managed IBM's humanitarian response to disasters. Ms. Willner joined IBM following her term as chief policy advisor to NYC Chancellor Joseph A Fernandez and leadership positions at education non-profits. Ms. Willner has served on multiple national commissions on education policy and non-profits boards of directors and is currently President of the New York Civil Liberties Union.
